

Check Yourself

In today's day & age people tend to look down on others with disabilities, and some just have good words to say on how sad it is there in such a position, and how fortunate enough they aren't faced with certain disabilities. Now with that being said, can we check ourselves deep down to see if we truly do care about the disabled. And if so from what position and to what limits. It's Not About looking cool for anyone or trying hard to be nice. I must admit I'm an individual where days I am completely reclusive but still keep a heart that understands some things in life. This world is hard enough to survive in with both legs and arms working. Let's check our position's & limits and if you're like me have your days but let's not rule out our disabled citizens in the community.

Peace Love & T's 4 Hope To All.
